February 15, 2008—Wakaya, Fiji. The Wakaya Club & Spa announced today that it has officially changed the name of the resort to “The Wakaya Club & Spa” and has launched a new website at www.wakaya.com.

This luxury private island resort is one of the most exclusive and pristine destinations in the South Pacific. With room for only 14 couples at a time and a commitment to conservation and preservation, The Wakaya Club & Spa is a serene retreat that offers gracious living, sophisticated cuisine and unparalleled leisure opportunities.

A place that travel connoisseurs have called “the most exclusive island hideaway in the world” it has provided the perfect escape for high profile visitors since its opening in 1990. Every detail at The Wakaya Club & Spa reflects owners’ David and Jill Gilmour’s commitment to privacy and perfection. “Our goal was to create The Wakaya Club & Spa as an extension of our own home so we could share this paradise with a few other people who could truly appreciate it,” says Jill Gilmour.

The Wakaya Club & Spa’s new website uses rich media and streamlined navigation to highlight details of the resort’s many amenities and activities for prospective guests.

“The combination of our relaxed, friendly environment with world-class service and amenities is what keeps our guests returning year after year,” said Doug Carlson, CEO of The Wakaya Club & Spa. “Our new website mirrors that environment and gives visitors a true sense for what it feels like to experience the beauty and serenity of Wakaya Island.”
